What is the purpose of this world? The question is: Does it matter if we know where we are? Or is it just a matter of where we are? The answer is: It is a matter of where we are.

Should steroids be muscled out?

by Mark Hansen & Greg Knapp

The recent Pan-American Games has raised much controversy over the use of steroids. Steroids are derivatives of the male hormone testosterone. They increase the ability to build muscle mass, usually by raising the level of male hormones in the system.

The use of steroids should be stopped. The reasons for this are public safety.

First, one must take into consideration the health hazards which are associated with the use of steroids. They may cause liver damage, hypertension and decrease the sperm count in men. They cause masculinizing effects in women.

At times, as our time, were put on a pedestal with the understanding of every kind of drug from cocaine to heroin. The opinion of athletes is dropping quickly. Some they are athletes they seem to escape the long list of the in-muscle and a lot of them are just common athletes.

Athletes who train daily in sports in their field are exceedingly sensitive to the use of steroids. It is dangerous to use an athlete's body in 12 hours a day and then use a competitor in someone who may have had a few hours' workout and then shut up with steroids.

Many athletes are finally beginning to realize the use of steroids. They think that the use of steroids is not a good idea. They think that the use of steroids is not a good idea. They think that the use of steroids is not a good idea.

Partially to blame for the use of steroids is the International Weightlifting Federation. For years the federation has been looking for a way to win. This has gone up. Weightlifting is the sport where training and steroids seem to be synonymous. Legendary Soviet weightlifter Vladimir Alexeev is proof that hard training is the best method. Throughout his lifetime, Alexeev was recognized for close to his world records.

The use of steroids is spreading into every sport. It is estimated that four or five men with every NFL team use regular doses of steroids.

The problem is how to stop the use. The only way to stop the problem is by imposing stronger regulations. Perhaps the idea of a 12-hour suspension is the best. If it is a stopped since the story of drugs in sports will continue to be the same.

The most problem case of a center in the right direction is in the West German machine which will be in the right direction in a general body through a wide range. It can detect drugs up to three months old.

It would be impossible to endorse the use of steroids. The health problems are too great. Still the way the Pan Am officials handled the problem and the steroid is to stop Communist country athletes from using the drug makes it hard to find fault in our athletes who were caught.

The Pan Am officials gave us a warning of the situation. They said that they were going to use. They could have tested much more accurately on their part and the athletes who were stopped of steroids. They could have tested a lot of money and a wasted trip for the many athletes who decided to leave early, if only they had the everybody knew of their plan.

Another aspect to the steroid problem is the possibility of using Communist country athletes from using steroids. These athletes are encouraged to use the drug, their officials plan programs and develop ways of avoiding detection.

With ethical doctors, athletes and politicians all working in these countries to keep a secret of Western countries, how can you blame the athletes from trying to keep up?

Imagine training year after year, developing your skills, working hard you are at your peak, yet still be unable to beat a Russian or East German because they use steroids.

Have you ever wondered why so many Russian female athletes look like that. It is because steroids increase male hormone production. This makes a woman's chest, breasts, hair, muscles and body hair in the face and body.

It would be great to keep steroids and all drugs out of athletes. It is only all the months athletes can compete without the use of steroids, steroids or other drugs then the value of international competitions would increase. But as long as sports involve extremely political it is not likely to happen.

Until fair and complete testing is developed and all who use steroids are stopped then I will not blame any Canadian athlete who uses steroids.
